Idaho educators still have time to claim their place at the 2022 FACE Conference

BOISE – Teaching and administrative staff from around the region interested in attending one of Idaho’s most anticipated annual training events can still claim a spot at the 2022 Idaho Family & Community Engagement (FACE) Conference, set for November 14 – 16.

“We have a handful of spaces still available to educators, and we hope that anyone interested in this amazing annual conference will make the move to sign up and join us for this year’s event,” Superintendent of Public Instruction Sherri Ybarra said.

This year’s FACE conference will be held at the Galaxy Center in Meridian over a three-day period, November 14 – 16. Registration closes on November 11, and participants are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible as the event typically sells out. Click here to claim your spot. The cost is $150 and there are no fees to register. This year, participants can also add an optional Community School tour on Wednesday, November 16 for no extra charge.

This year’s event will feature industry-expert speakers covering a variety of topics:

- Dr. Hamish Brewer, NAESP Nationally Distinguished Principal in Elementary and Secondary Levels
- Tabatha Rosproy, CCSSO National Teacher of the Year
- Dr. Hedy Cheng, Founder and Executive Director of Attendance Works, a national and state-level initiative aimed at advancing student success by addressing chronic absenteeism
- Nationally acclaimed experts in family and community engagement
- Specialists providing effective strategies in communicating with students, parents and families in poverty
- Locally recognized heroes in the fields of commitment and advocacy for students and families
