

Assessment Aligned Literacy Instruction

What Districts, Schools, & Teachers Need to Know

April 22, 2020

Istation's Indicators of Progress (ISIP) assessment has been configured to be administered at home for students in grades K-5. Students who log in to Istation from home on or after May 1, will be automatically assessed. The system will continue to assess student learning on the first login May and June.

In addition to administration of the assessment remotely, schools and districts have the option of utilizing Istation's home-school digital curriculum to support the delivery of early literacy instruction.

REMOTE ASSESSMENT & INSTRUCTION

- Administration of the assessment is optional.
- The assessment will be administered automatically when using the home school digital curriculum.
- Results from the assessment should be used by teachers to support instructional decisions and for parents to support reading at home.
- An assessment taken from home is indicated in the student session summary and activity detail report by a blue dot icon appearing next to the test date.
- Teachers have the option of posting additional individualized lessons for students to complete at home.
- Students will see the assigned lessons as pending completion in their backpacks when they log in. These lessons are separate from the curriculum and are assigned by the teacher.

ENSURING PARENT INVOLVEMENT

- Data can be shared with parents by enabling the parent portal access from the teacher login page of Istation.
