a. Operations Committee Report – Information Item

Mentoring and Professional Development Software Platform Update: This is currently in the pilot phase. During this pilot phase, there has been work on configuring a platform, creating content and updating mentors. The configuration stage has been completed. Next week, training of the mentors to use the platform will begin. This platform will be accessible to all of the public educators who are serving in public Idaho schools. There will be a limited number of mentors during the pilot phase and there will be preference to Local Education Associations (LEAs) that are more rural and remote. This will provide the infrastructure to push out resources to educators throughout the state. We are expecting a fall 2024 launch.

Rural and Underserved Educator Incentive Program Update: Applications are currently open. This program is for instructional staff and pupil service staff who have a five-year standard certificate or are enrolled while teaching in a public LEA. There is a requirement that the person has federal student loans or current eligible education expenses. This can be used for reimbursement for that personal development. The total payout is $12,000 over the course of 4 years. The application window closes at the end of September.

Educator Preparation Program and Review Process Update: The review process has been wrapped up. For the Education Preparation Programs (EPPs) that did not get their state review completed, there will be a shortened process called a state requirement check implemented. Those EPPs who will be receiving the state requirement check have already been notified and the check will be done virtually. This will include Boise State University, Idaho State University, Brigham Young University Idaho, and University of Idaho. There is a call for reviewers. If you are interested in being a reviewer, please reach out to Katie Shoup.

The Hunt Institute Update: A comprehensive action plan was created. This was an initiative brought forward by the Department of Education. The Path Forward utilizes a cohort model to include the Science of Reading. The two proposed action items are:

1. To ensure principal and district administrators are prepared to understand, support, and implement the Science of Reading.
2. Create guidance for the office of the State Board of Education and EPPs related to the comprehensive literacy plan.

Educator Registered Apprenticeship Program Update: This is a federally approved program. In the last meeting the State Board moved forward with a special education educator registered apprenticeship program. The State Board of Education is working with the U.S. Department of Labor to obtain approval for this.

Katie Mathias asked if there were any changes in terms of certification language and endorsements in the Idaho Administrative Procedures Act (IDAPA) or in board policy.

Shoup replied that there haven't been any changes in that particularly, just a movement of instructional endorsement from IDAPA to policy, which was a while ago.

Cina Lackey added that in 2023, there was a title change from Exceptional Child Generalist to Exceptional Child Education. The other change is instead of "visually impaired", it will read "blind and low vision".

5. Chair and Vice Chair Election Results

Angela Gillman will remain the chair and Ramona Lee will remain the vice chair of the Professional Standards Commission.

6. Member Reports

Lance Harrison provided a report on behalf of the Superintendent Organization. For those who are attending the superintendent network, the focus has been on professional learning communities, essential standards, priorities, prioritizing schedules, and modernization money (what needs to be done with facility reviews before money can be distributed to the schools). Karen Pyron asked if there had been any discussion on Covey training and the Leader in Me training.

Harrison replied that the state has been offering free Covey training for certain administrators and that superintendents have taken the training. Covey is continuing to offer 6 free individual sessions.

Katie Mathias provided a report on behalf of Idaho Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (IACTE). Mathias encouraged everyone to reach out to IACTE to work with them. Specific to principals and superintendents, IACTE sends a survey every fall. It comes from a real group of people, and IACTE reads the feedback and takes the feedback seriously. The survey comes from Idaho universities who have compiled this together and this feedback can be used to change programs. IACTE also does career fairs.

Angela Gillman provided a report on behalf of the Idaho Education Association (IEA). The IEA has a summer institute this July and it can be attended to earn up to three credits. The dues are used to pay for the institute so it will be a free opportunity for members to get those credits.

Gillman strongly encouraged using the IEA as a great way to get the Breach of Contract Guidance documents distributed to funnel down to get it to educators, when it becomes available.

7. Adjourn

i. Breach of Contract Guidance for Certified Educators

The Recommendations Committee reviewed and provided edits to a draft breach of contract guidance document for educators, which will serve as a companion document to the breach of contract guidance for Administrations and Boards. Committee members discussed the breach of contract phenomenon and provided insight to the group from each of their educational perspectives. The final draft document will come through the Recommendations Committee in September for approval consideration by the full PSC.

ii. Praxis II 7001 Series Presentation

Lisa Colón Durham, from Educational Testing Service (ETS) provided a presentation on Praxis II 7001 series - Elementary Education Teaching Reading, Mathematics, Social Studies, and Science. The Teaching Reading subtest 7002 is completely aligned to the science of reading and supports Idaho's literacy initiative. This test was rolled out in March. Lance Harrison asked about the cost of the assessment; Colón Durham replied the assessment cost will be about $30 higher than the 5001 series. Katie Mathias asked if this test has been reviewed by IHELP or if the test has been cross walked to the Idaho Comprehensive Literacy Standards. Would this test, if aligned to the Idaho Comprehensive Literacy Standards, serve in lieu of the ICLA, either in part or in whole? Lisa can have ETS perform a cross walk to the ICLA if the Department requests it. The committee discussed the benefit to preservice educators if 7002 is aligned to the ICLA. The committee asked that the cross walk be requested and discussed at the September committee meeting. Cina Lackey added that assessment 5205 can also be cross walked.
